UEFA

Innovation Award

We would like to expand our own team across positions and are therefore looking for leaders, creative specialists and defensive all-rounders. Whether IT, CSR, content, marketing, design or sales & cooperation: we expand our squad for every position.

B42

B42 – digital home of football – will combine football-specific performance, prevention and comeback training with gaming in the future, enabling teams, coaches and players to have the best season of their lives.

TEAMSPIRIT

We are convinced that we will have the greatest possible success with this vision. Because we are more sustainable and authentic and because we simply enjoy working together more every day. We want and we will create something very special, which does not yet exist in the football world.

YOUR IDEAL PROFIL

- You are preferably studying User Experience Design or a comparable course
- You already have experience with usability and prototyping methods
- You enjoy designing and trying out new user-centric methods
- You have a high affinity for strategic thinking and at the same time bring in new ideas and thoughts
- You can speak either German or English
- You have an efficient and independent way of working
- You're a real team player – on and off the pitch

YOUR ADVANTAGES

- You are part of a rapidly growing start-up in the soccer field
- You come into direct contact with new technologies and an innovative environment. We are the Pep Guardiola of football apps
- You get to know interesting personalities – from on and off the pitch
- You are involved in many exciting projects and can get a taste of everything
- Flexible working hours & remote working
- An appreciative working environment and numerous opportunities for your professional and personal development
